Description of Property and Justification: (Please attach map and photo)

The house is sited on the heavily wooded west bank of Middle Creek, several hundred feet south of Harney Road. It is a 1930s Rustic style, exposed round log construction with protruding, saddle-notched log ends. It is a one story building built into the hill; the foundation is exposed on the east elevation (creek side). A wide shed roofed porch extends from the first story level, above the exposed basement level, across the east elevation overlooking the creek. The house has an exterior stone, north gable-end chimney and an asphalt shingle roof. Windows are paired, six-over-six sash. The west (front) elevation is three bays with a door in the center bay and paired windows on either side, covered by a ground level shed-roof porch. Adjoining the log house on the north side is a frame, gable-front building on an exposed concrete or parged foundation, also built into the hill. A wide, uncovered deck projects from the east gable elevation overlooking the creek. The windows are four over four casement style, paired in the gable peaks. The building has weatherboard siding and the roof is covered with wood shingles. Off the southwest corner of the main log house is a one-room round log outbuilding, also constructed in the Rustic style, with an exterior stone chimney and a six light window on its north side. A modern frame garage sits on the hill east of the main complex of buildings.

Dr. William Cadle began practicing medicine in Emmitsburg in 1925, where he remained until his death in 1989. Among the many memories of 'Doc' Cadle recorded by Ruth Richard, was his summer "Cabin" on Middle Creek:

"With the thought in mind of having a weekend retreat, Dr. Cadle bought land from Charlie Mort along Middle Creek and built a log cabin using chestnut logs from the Pecher Farm. Bo has warm memories of whiling away his time at the Cabin.

Dr. Cadle was an expert woodworker. In addition to cabinet work for the Cabin, he created benches, chairs, candlesticks, corner cupboards, tables, clocks, and a chessboard. Most of these pieces are at the Cadle home, an old brick house restored by Dr. Cadle. Bo and Jean now live there, across the creek from the Cabin." (from "Remembering 'Doc' Cadle," by Ruth Richard, Emmitsburg Area Historical Society)

The main log house is eligible under National Register Criterion C as an intact example of a 1930s era Rustic style summer log house. Distinctive architectural elements include paired windows and Rustic exposed log construction. Although converted to year-round occupation, the exterior features remain remarkably unchanged. The wooded creek-side surroundings as well as associated building are still intact.
